

September 29, 2008 |
OPINIONS

Opinions

Type Size: A A A

Print

Email

Most Popular

No more taxes for roads, freeways

Sept. 6, 2008 12:00 AM

Regarding "Baseless criticism doesn't solve transportation issues" (Opinions, Thursday):

Why would I want to pay additional sales tax to build roads or freeways when I am already paying taxes on yearly license fee is outrageous, to build roads?

Why would I want to pay a tax to build roads in the country so developers would have an easier and cheap? The developers should pay impact fees and for the infrastructure for their projects.

If the powers-that-be want to add bicycle lanes, then license the bicycles. When I am buying the necessities for the bike riders, or light-rail riders. They should pay their own way.

- Albert Newberry, Mesa

Type Size: A A A

Print

Email

Most Popular

LATEST NEWS HEADLINES

House defeats \$700 billion bailout plan

Police investigate fatal shooting

City gets \$39 mil to stabilize housing sector

Pirates demand \$20 mil for ship

Body found at bus stop

Cadbury recalls chocolates over tainted milk

Ariz. Powerball ticket worth \$200,000

Food-box requests rising in hard times

Mexican police say 12 bodies found next to school

Guadalupe sues Arpaio to keep police protection

